Grant Verstandig

Grant Verstandig was named the Chief Digital Officer in March 2017 of UnitedHealth Group (NYSE:UNH) a company with over $250b in annual revenues. In this role, he is responsible for the strategic direction, governance, and performance expectations of UnitedHealth Group's digital platforms and capabilities.

Before assuming this role, Grant was the founder and CEO of Rally Health, Inc., a consumer-centric digital health company that develops online and mobile tools that empower people to take control of their health and well-being and manage their health care needs covering over 25 percent of the US healthcare population.

Grant started Rally at 21, after experiencing over 12 surgeries on his right leg. Rally raised several hundred million dollars from several strategic partners, including Cigna (NYSE:CI) and UnitedHealth Group, who acquired a majority stake in the business in 2014. In 2017, Rally was fully acquired by UnitedHealth Group as part of a multi-billion-dollar, all-stock deal, making it the largest digital health exit to date.

Grant has served as an advisor to several organizations in the health, defense, foreign policy and intelligence space, and is a senior advisor to the National Security Agency on advanced analytics, technology, and AI.

A serial entrepreneur, he is the co-founder and chairman of Epirus, a venture-backed defense company focused on creating advanced aerospace, kinetic, and directed energy weapons platforms for the special operations community that has raised nearly $100M. Grant is also the co-founder of the venture backed CRISPR gene editing company, Tavros, which aims to edit the genome of patients to use the immune system to fight disease. In addition, Grant is the co-founder of SpyCraft Entertainment, a movie and streaming company focused on the most important intelligence and military operations that have shaped the world around us, but that few know. Grant also is on the National Council for the American Enterprise Institute and is a founding member and Director of the Greater Washington Partnership.

He resides in the Washington D.C. area.
